RE: A Survey of 500 Adults Living in Kansas
Interviewing conducted May 9 - 11, 2016
Margin of error: +/- 4.3%

KEY FACTS

- Of the legal residents surveyed – both those registered to vote and those not registered to vote – 98% have either a birth certificate showing citizenship or a US passport readily available. This increases to 99% when including other hospital records or military records.
- Only one respondent affirmatively claimed not to have access to at least one of the tested documents – and this respondent indicated she was already registered to vote.
- Among those who are legal residents but not registered to vote in Kansas, 95% have a readily accessible birth certificate or passport.
- Only three respondents are not registered to vote and unable to affirmatively say they had a possible document. All three indicated naturalization papers were a possibility.
- This survey accurately reflects US Census data in that 83% are registered voters – the same percentage you achieve if you take the current number of registered voters in the state and the latest census estimate of those living in the state.

Cole Hargrave Snodgrass & Associates is pleased to present this executive summary of its recent study of Kansas residents. Conducted using a combination of listed samples for wired and wireless numbers as well as random-digit dialing for both wireless and wired telephones, this study is an accurate representation of the composition of Kansas. Controlled for gender, age, and geographic region in order to replicate US Census information, this study reveals requiring proof of citizenship in order to register to vote is not a concern for residents and is not hampering voter registration.

This study of residents reveals 83% are already registered voters. Among those not registered to vote, only one (who later acknowledged having access to a birth certificate) mentioned documentation as a reason for not being registered to vote. This was far outdistanced by those who said they had no interest in voting, those with felony convictions and those who for personal reasons (having moved, just turned of age, or had not made time) had not registered to vote.

Fully 96% of the respondents with legal status indicated they had ready access to a birth certificate showing them being born in the United States or on a US territory. When just including a US Passport option, this percentage grows to 98% having one of these two documents. This increases to 99% when including other hospital records or military records.

Access to a birth certificate is nearly universal with all age and income groups exceeding 95% having access. Similarly, those of Hispanic descent are just as likely to have access to a birth certificate showing US birth (96%) as are those not of Hispanic descent (96%).

Not only does this law not provide an obstacle to legal residents voting, it is embraced by them. Fully 77% of all respondents favor the law and only 14% oppose it. Even among those not registered to vote, 77% are supportive of the law. This group is actually less opposed (10%) than are those who are registered to vote (15%).

Pat McFerron is a native Kansan who is now President of the Oklahoma City based political research firm Cole Hargrave Snodgrass & Associates. McFerron has more than 25 years polling experience having conducted studies in 43 states.
