10-20-17

Hey! I recieved your letter postmarked 10-16-17 last night. It was good to hear from you again. I kinda figured that you have been busier than a one legged widget in an ass kicking contest with the Carrie Mae project and didn't wanna be a distraction so I slid back on writing. I want your presentation of that project to be successful in every conceivable way.

No... I wasn't surprised with the treatment the administration gave us during our visit. I have been here in the system long enough to expect things like that as a matter of standard operation. I apologize that you weren't afforded the time to set up that you were suppose to get - but all things considered I think you handled it all professionally and did your best to overcome the set backs.

Speaking of Jeremy, he is good people. I come to think of him as a friend the brief time I was there in Tishomingo. Jeremy has known Cody for a long time... back when Cody was in that area years ago. I can't remember if Cody ever said he was from Oklahoma, but I know he lived there for quiet a while some years ago. He knew a good number of people in that area... and like I said he knew a few pillars of the community like Pip Blue (he helped build his house and a few other things for him and his family) and the lady who owns the quarry. I can't recall her name, but Jan would know. From what I gathered - at one time Cody was established there in that community.

I am anxiously waiting to get transcripts to the episodes of the Carrie Mae Parker project! I am really pulling for you on this project.

George, I'm not quite sure I want those transcripts to come thru the mail room here (the ones from Paula County) I can't defend myself to the eyes that read thru them. You are welcome to ask all the questions you need to ask. I trust your ability to ask the relevant... and tough questions. I'm not shying away from any of that - but I have to live here and I don't need bias judgements affecting the way I am treated here. I'm sure you will understand my plight. Outside of the accusation, what physical proof do they have to present - or did they have? DNA tests? Do they explain why my line up consisted of 6 photos all of me? Why they had me masturbate into a specimen cup for them? Was that procedure? Man, those documents aren't gonna tell the true story. The bitch of it is that I got no proof to support my allegation - no more than they do... except they are the authorities, trusted by the community. When shit gets done like what happened to me it's impossible to fight... especially this late in the game. My only real argument is why wasn't any of their so called evidence tested then? How do they justify sending a 16 year old kid to prison and never test the evidence against him? Wouldn't someone be curious to know beyond any shadow of doubt that that kid wasn't telling the truth about his innocence?

Anyway... sorry for the outburst there. I still get frustrated when I think about that situation. For all intents & purposes, that shit ruined my life before it ever really started. I guess there is alot of bitterness inside me over it - unresolved issues.

Dont get me wrong, I am not against the justice system. I see it for what it is, trash. It's not perfect, but hell - what is? It's like the elephant in the room at times. Alot of people know it isn't fair and that those who wield the power make & break the rules to suit themselves. However... our country has the best justice system in the world. For the most part I believe police and those who sit in positions of authority do their best to fairly do their jobs - but there are exceptions. I just wish I wouldn't have been one of them.

You watched Bernie huh. That movie - as crazy as it seems - was based on a true story. I knew the guy Bernie Tiede from being in prison together. We were on the Telford Unit together. He really was one of the nicest meekest people you'd ever meet, but something that woman did caused him to snap. After being in prison for as long as I have been throughout my life I've learned that people are capable of anything... it doesn't take a certain kind or type. A lapse of reason often is cause/reason enough.

I understand about not being politically versed, I have only recently began to take interest in politics. I have a constitutional conservative position on things. I like Trump... I think he is going to be one of our greatest Presidents when history revisits him in 50 years. The media is biased against him... if it were Obama you couldn't get the media to stop talking about things like the soaring economy or the unemployment rate being at a 20 year low or our national GDP being at 3% for the first time since the 90's I think. At the end of the day, if Trump can get people working and prosperity coursing through our economy - he will win a 2nd term. Money talks bullshit walks.

Well, with that said I will close this one up. I hope to hear from you again soon. Take the best of care my friend.

Much Respect
Billy
