

| Feature | Narrative | Reporter/Interviewer | Significant Guest(s) | Guest Position | Story Location | Topic | Source | Date | Length | Program Title | Web | Air Time | Other Carriage |
|-----------|---|---|----------------------|-----------------|---------------------------|------------------|--------|-----------|---------|-----------------|-----|----------|----------------|
| Feature | You're listening to Morning Edition on KRCU and I'm Marissanne Lewis-Thompson. For years this restaurant has remained a staple within the Sikeston community. It's the only place where throwing rolls across a massive dining room is socially acceptable. People come from all over the country to get their hands on some good old fashioned southern cooking. If you haven't guessed by now KRCU's Lindsey Grojean and I made our next pit stop at Lamberts home of the "thrown roll" for this audio postcard. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson & Lindsey Grojean | | | Lambert's in Sikeston, MO | Culture | KRCU | 7/4/2016 | 0:04:35 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Feature | You're listening to Morning Edition on KRCU and I'm Lindsey Grojean. For more than three decades, Sara's Ice Cream has served as Ste. Genevieve's hotspot for a delicious cold treat. But in recent years, the ice cream parlor has become a revolving door of mentorship between the owner and her employees. KRCU's Marissanne Lewis-Thompson has more on the story. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Sara Menard | Ice Cream Owner | Ste. Genevieve | Culture | KRCU | 7/11/2016 | 0:04:16 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Interview | You're listening to Morning Edition on KRCU and I'm Marissanne Lewis-Thompson. Last week's shooting deaths of two black men in Louisiana and Minnesota by police officers spurred national protests about police brutality and racial-profiling of African-Americans. And in Dallas a protest turned deadly when a gunman shot and killed five police officers, while leaving several injured. Joining me in the studio to talk more about the state of policing is Cape Girardeau Police Chief Wes Blair. Thanks for joining me today. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Wes Blair | Police Chief | Cape Girardeau | Racial Relations | KRCU | 7/13/2016 | 0:04:37 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Interview | You're listening to Morning Edition on KRCU and I'm Lindsey Grojean. In recent years, police departments across the country have faced widespread scrutiny for the racial profiling of African-Americans. KRCU's Marissanne Lewis-Thompson continues her discussion with Cape Girardeau's Police Chief Wes Blair about the current state of policing. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Wes Blair | Police Chief | Cape Girardeau | Racial Relations | KRCU | 7/14/2016 | 0:04:30 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Interview | You're listening to Morning Edition on KRCU and I'm Marissanne Lewis-Thompson. The recent shooting deaths of two black men has created more tension between African-Americans and law enforcement. And now many wonder if the officers at the center of this will be held accountable. Joining me in the studio to talk about the way we look at justice in America is Dr. Jeremy Ball, the department chair for the Criminal Justice and Sociology department here at SEMO. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Dr. Jeremy Ball | Professor | Cape Girardeau | Racial Relations | KRCU | 7/15/2016 | 0:04:32 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Interview | You're listening to Morning Edition on KRCU and I'm Lindsey Grojean. Last week we began our discussion on the current state of policing in the wake of the two shooting deaths of two African-American men. Today KRCU's Marissanne Lewis-Thompson continues our discussion on justice in a "post-racial" society with Dr. Jeremy Ball a Criminal Justice professor here at SEMO. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Dr. Jeremy Ball | Professor | Cape Girardeau | Racial Relations | KRCU | 7/18/2016 | 0:04:04 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Feature | You're listening to Morning Edition, I'm Lindsey Grojean. Tucked away in a bundle of hills, the village of New Hamburg, Missouri hasn't its own zip code, nor does it house more than 200 residents. But once a year, hundreds of people return to what they call home. I captured the sounds of the New Hamburg picnic, an annual summer celebration not only for fun, but to keep St. Lawrence Parish, the heart of the community beating. | Lindsey Grojean | | | New Hamburg, Missouri | Culture | KRCU | 7/21/2016 | 0:04:44 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |

| Feature | Narrative | Reporter/Interviewer | Significant Guest(s) | Guest Position | Story Location | Topic | Source | Date | Length | Program Title | Web | Air Time | Other Carriage |
|-----------|--|---|-------------------------|---|----------------|------------------------|--------|-----------|---------|-----------------------|-----|----------|----------------|
| Feature | For the last 108 years, the streets of downtown Jackson have become a nostalgic adventure, lined with food stands and vibrantly lit rides. The smell of fried food lingers in the air as people make their way down memory lane for Jackson Homecomers. From friends and family to classmates and old war buddies, Homecomers is the crowning glory before the school year begins. KRCU's Marissanne Lewis-Thompson and I captured the sounds of this reunion for this audio postcard. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson and Lindsey Grojean | | | Jackson | Culture | KRCU | 8/3/2016 | 0:04:38 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Interview | You're listening to Morning Edition on KRCU and I'm Marissanne Lewis-Thompson. Dyslexia is a common problem many students face in Missouri. And now, a new law will require all Missouri students to be screened for the learning disability. Joining me in the studio is Missouri House Representative Kathy Swan who helped spearhead the legislation. Representative Swan thanks for joining me today. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Kathy Swan | Missouri Representative | Cape Girardeau | Children & Youth | KRCU | 8/4/2016 | 0:03:45 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Feature | From the KRCU newsroom I'm Marissanne Lewis-Thompson. Leather chaps, bucking horses, rodeo clowns and cowboys are the necessary ingredients to a well seasoned rodeo. And in Sikeston, the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo is the one place where everybody gets a shot to be a cowboy for a day. In a continuation of our series Show Me Summer KRCU's Lindsey Grojean and I stopped by the rodeo for this audio postcard. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson and Lindsey Grojean | | | Sikeston, Mo | Culture | KRCU | 8/15/2016 | 0:04:14 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Feature | From the KRCU newsroom I'm Marissanne Lewis-Thompson. Leather chaps, bucking horses, rodeo clowns and cowboys are the necessary ingredients to a well seasoned rodeo. And in Sikeston, the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo is the one place where everybody gets a shot to be a cowboy for a day. In a continuation of our series Show Me Summer KRCU's Lindsey Grojean and I stopped by the rodeo for this audio postcard. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson and Lindsey Grojean | | | Sikeston | Culture | KRCU | 8/15/2016 | 0:03:59 | All Things Considered | Yes | 4:44 | |
| Feature | From the KRCU newsroom I'm Lindsey Grojean. Nowadays we can improve just about anything, from the smartphone in our pocket to the latest gaming system. But what about basic things like flowers? It turns out you can. KRCU's Marissanne Lewis-Thompson recently met a man who's been enhancing the look of flowers for decades. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | | | Cape Girardeau | Environment | KRCU | 8/19/2016 | 0:04:35 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Interview | In the latest installment of their monthly conversations, KRCU's Dan Woods talks with Southeast President Carlos Vargas about the start of the Fall semester and gives new freshman some advice on how to be successful at the university. | Dan Woods | Dr. Carlos Vargas | President, Southeast Missouri State University | Cape Girardeau | College & Universities | KRCU | 8/23/2016 | 0:04:00 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |
| Interview | In the latest installment of their monthly conversations, KRCU's Dan Woods talks with Southeast President Carlos Vargas about the start of the Fall semester and gives new freshman some advice on how to be successful at the university. | Dan Woods | Dr. Carlos Vargas | President, Southeast Missouri State University | Cape Girardeau | College & Universities | KRCU | 8/23/2016 | 0:04:00 | All Things Considered | Yes | 16:44 | |
| Interview | This summer's coverage of police involved shootings triggered public outrage nationwide. Social media blew up with a slew of criticisms, some of which were targeted towards the mainstream media, ranging from stories lacking context of deeply rooted social issues to alleged race-baiting. Now the media is having to rethink how it's covering the news. I sat down with Dr. Tamara Zellars Buck, an associate professor from the department of Mass Media at Southeast, to talk about the challenges of diversity in the media. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Dr. Tamara Zellars Buck | Associate Professor in the Department of Mass Media | Cape Girardeau | Racial Relations | KRCU | 8/26/2016 | 0:19:57 | Going Public | Yes | 18:00 | |
| Interview | On Thursday, August 18, Dan Woods sat down for his monthly conversation with Southeast President Carlos Vargas. It happened to be on move-in day at Southeast. Dr. Vargas and Dan talked about an increase in freshman attending the university and about the new Towers Cafe. He also told Dan about the two big goals for the university this year. | Dan Woods | Dr. Carlos Vargas | President, Southeast Missouri State University | Cape Girardeau | College & Universities | KRCU | 9/2/2016 | 0:04:00 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |

| Feature | Narrative | Reporter/Interviewer | Significant Guest(s) | Guest Position | Story Location | Topic | Source | Date | Length | Program Title | Web | Air Time | Other Carriage |
|-----------|---|---------------------------|--------------------------------------|---|---------------------|------------------------|--------|-----------|---------|-----------------------|-----|----------|----------------|
| Interview | On Thursday, August 18, Dan Woods sat down for his monthly conversation with Southeast President Carlos Vargas. It happened to be on move-in day at Southeast. Dr. Vargas and Dan talked about an increase in freshman attending the university and about the new Towers Cafe. He also told Dan about the two big goals for the university this year. | Dan Woods | Dr. Carlos Vargas | President, Southeast Missouri State University | Cape Girardeau | College & Universities | KRCU | 9/2/2016 | 0:04:00 | All Things Considered | Yes | 16:44 | |
| Interview | Today on KRCU's Going Public, we're talking all things literacy with my guests Dr. Debra Porter and Dr. Dixie McCollum from the department of Elementary, Early and Special Education. We'll talk about the Read to Succeed Plus Reading Academy through the university and how it's improved the reading skills of kids in the community. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Dr. Debra Porter, Dr. Dixie McCollum | Department of Elementary, Early and Special Education at Southeast Missouri State University | Cape Girardeau | College & Universities | KRCU | 9/2/2016 | 0:11:00 | Going Public | Yes | 18:00 | |
| Interview | Dyslexia is a common problem many students face in Missouri. And now, a new law has taken effect this week requiring all Missouri students to be screened for the learning disability. Earlier this month, I spoke with Missouri House Representative Kathy Swan who helped spearhead the legislation. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Kathy Swan | Missouri House Representative | Cape Girardeau | Education | KRCU | 9/2/2016 | 0:09:00 | Going Public | Yes | 18:20 | |
| Interview | It's KRCU's Going Public and I'm your host Marissanne Lewis-Thompson. Have you eve thought about drinking wine from a can? Well a new study shows some millennials are not opposed to unconventional methods of wine packaging. Joining me in the studio is the study's author Dr. Nicholas Johnston, a professor at Southeast Missouri State University. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Nicholas Johnston | professor at Southeast Missouri State University | Cape Girardeau | Culture | KRCU | 9/9/2016 | 0:11:00 | Going Public | Yes | 18:00 | |
| Interview | Random drug testing is starting to catch wind in school districts across the country. One of them is the Jackson R-2 school district. The new policy is directed towards students involved in extracurricular activities in the district. Joining me over the phone to talk about this policy is Jackson R-2 school district superintendent Dr. John Link. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Dr. John Link | Superintendent, Jackson R-II School District | Cape Girardeau | Education | KRCU | 9/9/2016 | 0:09:00 | Going Public | Yes | 18:20 | |
| Interview | It's KRCU's Going Public and I'm your host Marissanne Lewis-Thompson. A 2012 census bureau report showed Asian Americans are the fastest-growing racial group in the nation. But with election season in full swing, Asian American voices are largely left out of the political conversation. Joining me over the phone to talk about why this is is Alton Wang, a Communications and Development Associate from the Asian and Pacific Islander American Vote. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Alton Wang | Development Associate with Asian and Pacific Islander American Vote. | Cape Girardeau | Politics & Government | KRCU | 9/16/2016 | 0:11:00 | Going Public | Yes | 18:00 | |
| Interview | My next guest is Dr. Debra Lee-DiStefano, a professor of Spanish here at SEMO. Earlier this year she contributed to the book Imagining Asia in the Americas, which takes a look at the many contributions from Asians in the Americas. Recently, she joined me in the studio to talk more about those contributions and what it means to be Asian in America. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Dr. Debra Lee-DiStefano | Professor of Spanish at Southeast Missouri State University | Cape Girardeau | Politics & Government | KRCU | 9/16/2016 | 0:09:00 | Going Public | Yes | 18:20 | |
| Interview | Today on KRCU's Going Public, we're debunking the misconceptions of the Islamic faith. We'll hear about the Islamic faith, the cultural differences on how women are treated, and his personal experience with 9/11. | Lindsey Grojean | Dr. Tahsin Khalid | Professor in Dept. of Elementary, Early & Special Education & Southeast Missouri State University | Cape Girardeau, Mo. | Recreation & Religion | KRCU | 9/23/2016 | 0:20:30 | Going Public | Yes | 18:00 | |
| Interview | You'll soon have the chance to see a piece of World War II-era history when the LST Memorial 325 visits Cape Girardeau in late September. The LST was a participant in the D-Day invasion of Omaha Beach on June 6, 1944. Stacy Dohogne Lane stopped by the KRCU studios to tell us more about the visit by this historic ship and about other historical activities coming to Cape Girardeau. | Dan Woods | Stacy Dohogne Lane | Cape Girardeau CVB | Cape Girardeau | Entertainment | KRCU | 9/23/2016 | 0:04:00 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | |

| Feature | Narrative | Reporter/Interviewer | Significant Guest(s) | Guest Position | Story Location | Topic | Source | Date | Length | Program Title | Web | Air Time | Other Carriage |
|-----------|---|--------------------------------------|--|--|---------------------------------|------------------------|--------|-----------|---------|-----------------------|-----|----------|--|
| Feature | You'll soon have the chance to see a piece of World War II-era history when the LST Memorial 325 visits Cape Girardeau in late September. The LST was a participant in the D-Day invasion of Omaha Beach on June 6, 1944. | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Interview | Stacy Dohogne Lane stopped by the KRCU studios to tell us more about the visit by this historic ship and about other historical activities coming to Cape Girardeau. | Dan Woods | Stacy Dohogne Lane | Cape Girardeau CVB | Cape Girardeau | Entertainment | KRCU | 9/26/2016 | 0:04:00 | All Things Considered | Yes | 16:44 | |
| Interview | Dan Woods talks with Southeast President Carlos Vargas about the new Rust Center for Media and he discusses the reasons for the increase of freshman for the fall semester. | Dan Woods | Dr. Carlos Vargas | President, Southeast Missouri State University | Cape Girardeau | College & Universities | KRCU | 9/29/2016 | 0:04:00 | Morning Edition | Yes | 7:45 | Heartland CW 12.2 (Focus on Southeast) |
| Feature | In its heyday, the B-17 bomber was a force to be reckoned with. During World War II, the flying fortress dropped more than 600,000 tons of bombs in Europe. Virtually helping to turn the tide of the war. But these days only a handful of those heavy bombers are flyable. One of them is Sentimental Journey. She's one of the most authentically restored B-17's out there today. Recently, the iconic warbird found its way to the airport as part of the Flying Legends Victory Tour. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Shelby Bolkey, Larry Perkins, Floyd Smith, Clifford Heinrich | Loadmaster, Sentimental Journey Pilot, and World War II Veterans | Cape Girardeau Regional Airport | Culture | KRCU | 9/30/2016 | 0:09:47 | Going Public | Yes | 18:00 | |
| Interview | It's KRCU's Going Public and I'm your host Marissanne Lewis-Thompson. Passports, hotspots and a telescope are some of the newest services to hit the Cape Girardeau Public Library. And joining me in the KRCU studio to talk more about all these things is the Library's Director Betty Martin. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson | Betty Martin | Cape Girardeau Public Library | Cape Girardeau | Culture | KRCU | 9/30/2016 | 0:07:02 | Going Public | Yes | 18:00 | |
| Interview | Southeast Missouri State University saw a 10 percent enrollment increase in this year's freshman class. KRCU's Dan Woods recently spoke with Southeast President Dr. Carlos about that and the new Rust Center for Media. | Marissanne Lewis-Thompson/ Dan Woods | Dr. Carlos Vargas | Southeast Missouri State University President | Cape Girardeau | College & Universities | KRCU | 9/30/2016 | 0:03:59 | Going Public | Yes | 18:00 | |