UMD students who like to think and/or write:

Are you looking for some real newsroom work experience?

KUMD 103.3 FM (your radio station on the UMD campus) is looking for four news interns to produce a weekday (M-F) daily on-air segment with local perspectives, people, and issues affecting our community.

As a member of the Northland Morning production team, you will brainstorm ideas in weekly production meetings, schedule interviews, learn to edit audio and more.

If you're detail-oriented, responsible, and looking for real-world newsroom or communications department experience, please email your resume and application letter to: Lisa Johnson nmorning@kumd.org

FOUR POSITIONS AVAILABLE

Candidates must be available for mandatory weekly news meeting, Monday or Tuesday mornings. Exact day/time to be determined by news team.

This is NOT a paid internship, but could be used as a for-credit internship.

- Applications will be accepted immediately.

Northland Morning Assistant News Producer PAID position beginning this summer

The Northland Morning Assistant News Producer helps recruit and train news team members and provides critical assistance to the interns and the morning show host/producer. Work study preferred but negotiable.

The successful candidate would ideally work with the current assistant news producer during fall semester 2015, learning the job so they can transition into the position seamlessly in January. They could possibly hold this position until graduation, at which time they would be responsible for helping to recruit and train their replacement.

If you're detail-oriented, responsible, available to train this semester and begin work spring semester, please email your resume and application letter to: Lisa Johnson nmorning@kumhd.org
