VPR provides an essential and trusted independent voice for news, information, music and cultural exploration for the people of our region.
A Note From VPR’s President

Dear VPR Supporter,

I’m pleased to share with you a handful of the indelible and vitally important moments you made possible in 2015. Community support is the cornerstone of all that VPR is and does, and for this, we are so grateful – you have helped make VPR an indispensable resource for the people of our region.

In a media and technology landscape that is constantly changing, one thing you can count on is VPR’s commitment to public service. We are dedicated to helping you better understand your world, inspiring you to be an engaged citizen, and satisfying your curiosity. All of these things are rare in today’s world, but thanks to you, they flourish here at VPR.

Again, thank you for being part of our community! Please contact me anytime at 802-654-4312 or rturnau@vpr.net if you’d like to talk further about VPR, our programming, or our plans for the future.

All the best,

Robin Turnau
VPR President & CEO

2015 HIGHLIGHTS

IN-DEPTH REPORTING

You count on VPR to dig deep – beyond the headlines, through close examination of the issues that affect us as a state. The VPR News team continues to bring a vital depth of knowledge to the community and hold people in power to account.

VPR News’ Downstream series looked at water quality and pollution in Vermont. The series aired in 10 parts on VPR and featured an Extensive digital project that dove deep into the Lake Champlain cleanup plan and revealing exactly what’s being proposed and what parts of the lake are most at risk.

We increased our investigative and enterprise reporting through a partnership with independent data journalist Hilary Niles. As Vermont faced an increasing budget gap in excess of $100 million, the first project looked at $1 billion in hidden tax breaks in “Vermont’s Shadow Budget.”

VPR doubled down on coverage of health and health care, the economy, education, the Vermont Legislature, and other public policy issues that impact our region.
2015 HIGHLIGHTS

ELECTION COVERAGE

Becoming Bernie examined the rise and record of Vermont presidential candidate Bernie Sanders. The program has aired on more than a dozen stations across the country and was featured by NPR.org.

With Governor Peter Shumlin’s announcement that he would not seek reelection, the gubernatorial race is wide open for 2016. As candidates have stepped forward to vie for the office, Vermont Edition has broadcast in-depth, one-on-one interviews with the candidates.

VPR broke the news last spring that Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders would run for president. Since then, VPR News has covered Sen. Sanders’ run for president extensively.
2015 HIGHLIGHTS

MUSIC DISCOVERY

Whether it’s classical, jazz, folk, or contemporary, you can count on VPR to bring you incredible music. We are devoted to supporting the local music community through live performances, interviews, and concert promotion.

Live From The Fort, VPR’s online video concert series, has featured 17 Vermont-based bands including Swale, The Grift, and Rough Francis, all recorded at our Fort Ethan Allen studios in Colchester. The series provides an opportunity to discover and explore the rich and diverse contemporary music scene here in Vermont.

Timeline is a new podcast and program on VPR Classical that offers an exploration into the development of Western music.

VPR Classical welcomed James Stewart this year as its weekday afternoon host. James has deep experience with classical music and recently received his doctorate of musical arts from The Hartt School of Music. You can hear his program from 4-7 p.m. on weekdays, and on Saturdays from 8-10 a.m.
2015 HIGHLIGHTS

VPR ANYTIME, ANYWHERE

56% of users access VPR.net and its streams on a mobile device. VPR's digital and news teams are focused on making the news, music, and conversation you depend on accessible no matter how you choose to connect.

VPR's new Podcast Directory includes Wintry Mix, which explores Vermont’s snow economy and culture, and Awesome Etiquette, which is recorded at VPR and distributed by American Public Media’s Infinite Guest network.

VPR is a lead partner in NPR One, a smartphone app that connects you to public radio news, stories, and podcasts from around the world and here in our region – tailored to your schedule and interests. It’s "public radio made personal" and it is part of our commitment to make our content as accessible as possible.
Awards

VPR has won 80 awards for its news coverage in the last 10 years.

Regional Edward R. Murrow Awards
Vermont Public Radio won three regional Edward R. Murrow Awards from the Radio Television Digital News Association (RTDNA) for continuing coverage, website, and writing:

- Continuing Coverage of drug addiction in Vermont
- Website, for VPR.net’s overall news content
- Writing, for Digital Editor Angela Evancie’s piece, What’s Local At Trader Joe’s? It’s Hard To Tell

Journalism Excellence Award for Community Engagement
Associated Press Media Editors chose VPR’s Traces Project for its Journalism Excellence Award for community engagement. Traces is a digital project at VPR.net that asked those who had direct experience with addiction, whether they had lost a loved one, lost touch with a friend, or fought their own addiction, to share their stories.

Public Radio News Directors, Inc. Awards
VPR was honored with two national awards from Public Radio News Directors, Inc. for its coverage in 2014. The winning coverage includes:

- Best Multimedia Presentation: Campaign 2014 (2nd Place)
- Commentary: Kunin: On Silence And Suicide (2nd Place)

Best Places To Work In Vermont
Vermont Public Radio was named one of the 2015 Best Places to Work in Vermont by Vermont Business Magazine and the Vermont Chamber of Commerce.

Journalism Fund
January 1 – December 31, 2015

Established in 2010, this special fund enables reporters and producers to innovate, take risks, and respond to opportunities. The Journalism Fund is designed to support a range of initiatives and is administered by an in-house committee of VPR staff. Funded projects are held to the same high level of independence and integrity you expect from VPR, thanks to the firewall between donors and decisions about news projects, reporting, and editorial standards.
