6.1 Telling Public Radio's Story

Jump to question:

The purpose of this section is to give you an opportunity to tell us and your community about the activities you have engaged in to address community needs by outlining key services provided, and the local value and impact of those services. Please report on activities that occurred in Fiscal Year 2015. Responses may be shared with Congress or the public. Grantees are required to post a copy of this report (Section 6 only) to their website no later than ten (10) days after the submission of the report to CPB. CPB recommends placing the report in an "About" or similar section on your website. This section had previously been optional. Response to this section of the SAS is now mandatory.

Joint licensee Grantees that have filed a 2015 Local Content and Services Report as part of meeting the requirement for TV CSG funding may state they have done so in the corresponding questions below, so long as all of the questions below were addressed as they relate to radio operations in such report. You must include the date the report was submitted to CPB along with the TV Grantee ID under which it was submitted.

1. Describe your overall goals and approach to address identified community issues, needs, and interests through your station's vital local services, such as multiplatform long and short-form content, digital and in-person engagement, education services, community information, partnership support, and other activities, and audiences you reached or new audiences you engaged.

WAER's goal and approach to addressing community needs is to report on the issues affecting our community and distribute those reports as widely as possible. With a full-time reporting staff of 3 and as many as 10 student volunteers, the WAER news department covers a wide range of topics including economic development, innovation, health, public education, and local politics. Reports are aired during morning and afternoon news casts available over air or via web streaming. Reports are also published on our website and often contain additional audio and interviews not available in the broadcast versions. In addition to web publishing, stories are distributed through social media platforms.

2. Describe key initiatives and the variety of partners with whom you collaborated, including other public media outlets, community nonprofits, government agencies, educational institutions, the business community, teachers and parents, etc. This will illustrate the many ways you're connected across the community and engaged with other important organizations in the area.

WAER organized and facilitated a public forum on climate change. The focus of the forum was to discuss the findings of the Paris Climate Summit and how those findings and recommendations might impact the Central New York community. The public forum was recorded and aired at a later date. The recording was also available on demand on WAER.org. There were over 80 people in attendance. Partners including the Syracuse University Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs; the Central New York Community Foundation; and the nonprofit environmental group GreeningUSA.

Jump to question:

3. What impact did your key initiatives and partnerships have in your community? Describe any known measurable impact, such as increased awareness, learning or understanding about particular issues. Describe indicators of success, such as connecting people to needed resources or strengthening conversational ties across diverse neighborhoods. Did a partner see an increase in requests for related resources? Please include direct feedback from a partner(s) or from a person(s) served.

While we are unable to measure the impact of some of the initiatives, we can speculate that the quality of information provided and access to experts during open forums had a positive impact on attendees at the public forum. Additionally, our partnership with the Community Folk Art Center to produce an annual Black History Month kick-off concert has increased and diversified patronage of the event.

Jump to question:

4. Please describe any efforts (e.g. programming, production, engagement activities) you have made to investigate and/or meet the needs of minority and other diverse audiences (including, but not limited to, new immigrants, people for whom English is a second language and illiterate adults) during Fiscal Year 2015, and any plans you have made to meet the needs of these audiences during Fiscal Year 2016. If you regularly broadcast in a language other than English, please note the language broadcast.

WAER partners with a local folk art center to produce an annual Black History Month celebration that is free and open to the public. Additionally, WAER programs roughly 30 hours of content during February in recognition of African American history and achievement. WAER's news department covers issues and news affecting minority and immigrant communities. Most recently those stories have centered around economic development. One such story focused on the need for a grocery store that offers fresh fruit and vegetables on Syracuse's south side (predominantly African American). Another focused on the progress of an impact grant for economic development in new immigrant communities.

Jump to question:

5. Please assess the impact that your CPB funding had on your ability to serve your community. What were you able to do with your grant that you wouldn't be able to do if you didn't receive it?

The CPB Community Service Grant is a critical source of funding that allows WAER move beyond the walls of its studios and into the community where important community engagement takes place. We recently refined our programming strategy and reduced the number of hours of music programming to focus on news and public affairs. We restructured staff to maximize news reporting efforts and developed a community engagement strategy. Without CPB funding, WAER would have to rely heavily on automated national programs and abandon much of our community engagement activity.
