Here Comes The Fund Drive!

It Is Always You

Alan S. Chartock
WAMC President and C.E.O.

I recently met someone who told me that she knew I am not really as nervous as I say I am about the upcoming February 2nd fund drive. I'll let you in on a secret. I've done about a hundred fund drives and I worry before each and every one of them. I lose sleep; I break out into inexplicable sweats; I have nightmares. It is always up to my Roselle to remind me how people love the station, how much they depend on it and how they would never let it fail. You know that nightmare we have about the exam in the college class we never even knew we were registered for? This one is that we have a fund drive and the phones don't ring and the on-line pledges don't come in. Roselle always puts her hand on my neck and assures me that everything is going to be fine. And, of course, she has always been right.

Now we have the incredible Locked Box that allows people to show their love for the station by putting something into the kitty before the fund drive even begins. Every penny we receive goes toward shortening the on-air drive. As I write this, amazingly, we are getting very close to the halfway

February Programming Notes

Katie Britton
WAMC Programming and Outreach Director

A Celebration of America's History

February is here and so is our winter Fund Drive. Now is the time to let us know which shows you love and which ones you're not all that fond of. Whether you call in your pledge or make it on line, we do read every comment that you make as well as take note of your favorite programs. Your comments help us see what you're most interested in so don't be shy, take those extra seconds to help us better serve you!

On that note, by now you've heard the hype about Invisibilia. Invisibilia is about the unseen forces that control human behavior -- things like ideas, beliefs, assumptions, and thoughts. Co-hosted by Lulu Miller and Alix Spiegel, who helped create Radiolab and This American Life, Invisibilia interweaves narrative storytelling and fascinating new psychological and brain science, in a way that ultimately makes you see your own life differently. The pilot season of six episodes will begin on Sunday, February 15th at 6AM.

We also have some wonderful President's Day programming coming up. Not only will we be commemorating our Commanders in Chief, but we'll also be celebrating the people and events that have helped shape the black American movement and history. Our day of specials will begin at 9AM with Re:Defining Black History. During a month selected to celebrate "history" we will revisit familiar stories -- the battles won for Civil Rights, the glory of Martin Luther King Jr.'s words, the hardships endured by slaves. We'll also take a look at some stories that are not as well point in the entire drive.

There are people like me who love the fund drive. We see it as a crucial time when we can all get together and shout out to our friends and neighbors about what we like and what we don't. The food is great. The volunteers are terrific and I could cry every time I see these wonderful people returning to Camp WAMC. This year, we lost one of the best, our Wayne Foote who was here in every fund drive. It breaks my heart that we won't see him this time around.

In the end, it is always you who makes a difference. There are really good people who were raised by really good folks who understand that any cooperative enterprise is risky. It could be the food co-op in your home town or it could be your local PTA but the longer I am around, the more I understand that some people are ready to make something work and to value it appropriately. Yes, WAMC is a charitable organization and you can get that deduction but it is also an incredibly valuable service. It is a constant, stable part of our lives. When we turn the radio on in the morning, it is there. During the few times the station has gone off the air for one reason or another, we heard from so many of you. Your voices were not angry; they were concerned, like a member of the family had sustained an injury.

Personally, I feel a tremendous obligation to make it work. Every blue moon I hear from a good person who is worried about succession. Some of them put it right out there. "What will happen when you die?" The more I think about it, the more flattered I am about the question. I know it is because the person really cares about the station. Believe me, this is a terrific organization. People don't see all the talented people who make this place run. If you listen to a fund drive you will hear less Alan and more Ray and Joe and Ian and Sarah. It should be pointed out that our fund drives are going faster and faster. Our Dona Frank, who most people don't know, is a big part of the planning and execution as is Meegan Finnegan and fund drivers Colleen O'Connell and Felicia Berke. They work tirelessly to get all the stuff we give away during the fund drive and to round up the volunteers.

The whole thing is a huge effort, kind of like putting on a Broadway play but I wouldn't have it any other way because it proves again and again that we are one. We all thank you for what you have done and what you are about to do.

- Alan

Spicer Art Conservation

Spicer Art Conservation, LLC. has been caring for collections from museums, historical societies, state agencies, businesses, collectors and private owners since 1995. The focus has always been to provide long-term collection care and preservation of artifacts while working closely with the needs of the owner. www.spicerart.com

The Sweater Venture

The Sweater Venture was born out of an interest in learning about and appreciating the customs, cultures and values of societies different from mine in far away corners of the world. More than 25 years later, with all those far-away corners now so much closer, The Sweater Venture tries to hold on to those core values as tightly as ever. This means working as directly as possible with the many artisans whose work contributes to their collections. www.sweaterventure.com

Union College Concert Series

The Union College Concert Series' 2014-2015 Season offers fifteen performances by a wonderful array of leading international artists and ensembles that you won't want to miss. There's something for everyone – six debuts, some of your favorite artists, two all-Beethoven programs, and even Schubert's Winterreise song cycle.

remembered. In this hour, State of the Re:Union zeroes in on some of those alternate narratives, ones edited out of the mainstream imagining of Black History, deconstructing the popular perception of certain celebrated moments. From a more complicated understanding of the impact of the Civil Rights Act of '64 on Jackson, Mississippi... to a city in Oklahoma still trying to figure out how to tell the history of one particular race riot... to one woman's wrangling with her own personal racial history.

Langston Hughes, an enduring icon of the Harlem Renaissance, is best-known for his written work, which wedded his fierce dedication to social justice with his belief in the transformative power of the word. But he was a music lover, too, and some of the works he was most proud of were collaborations with composers and musicians. At 10AM, we will air Langston Hughes - I Too Sing America, which shines a light on Hughes' lesser-known musical compositions.

Then at 11AM we'll bring you The Power of Words, which focuses on President Dwight D. Eisenhower's Farewell Address. WAMC's Alan Chartock and Author and Historian James Ledbetter discuss President Dwight D. Eisenhower's Farewell Address. In addition, listeners will have an opportunity to actually hear the speech as it was delivered to a joint session of Congress on January 17th, 1961. Noon will bring you your daily helping of news with Midday Magazine, which is followed by RadioLab at 1PM.

Rounding our day of specials, tune in at 2PM for Who Is This Man? from State of the Re:Union. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s "I Have a Dream" speech has become the shorthand of the Civil Rights Movement - but we might never have heard it, if it were not for another man, who's largely been forgotten by history: Bayard Rustin. In this program hour, we explore the life and legacy of Mr. Rustin, a black, gay, Quaker who brought Gandhian non-violent protest to the Civil Rights movement in America. - Katie

IRA and Retirement Plan Limits for 2015

Provided by RBC Wealth Management and Thomas E. Brockley

The IRS recently announced changes to several inflation-adjusted tax items, including the 2015 federal income tax brackets and rates that will impact your 2015 tax return. The IRS also announced changes to 2015 retirement plan contributions limits and phase-outs.

Retirement Plan Contribution Limits

The elective deferral (contribution) limit for employees who participate in 401(k), 403(b), most 457 plans, and the federal government's Thrift Savings Plan has increased from $17,500 to $18,000. The catch-up contribution limit for employees aged 50 and over who participate in 401(k), 403(b), most 457 plans, and the federal government's Thrift Savings Plan changed from $5,500 to $6,000.

The amount you can contribute to a SIMPLE IRA or SIMPLE 401(k) plan has increased to $12,500 for 2015, up from $12,000 in 2014. The catch-up limit for those age 50 or older has also increased, to $3,000 (up from $2,500 in 2014).

*WAMC Executive Committee

Monthly meetings of the WAMC Executive Board are the second Monday of each. Meetings are open to the public. All meetings take place at 5:00 pm at WAMC, 318 Central Avenue, Albany, NY 12206 unless otherwise noted.

It is recommended that you call the station at 800.323.9262 in advance of the meeting to ensure it will be taking place as scheduled.

IRA contribution limits

The maximum amount you can contribute to a traditional IRA or Roth IRA in 2015 is $5,500 (or 100% of your earned income, if less), unchanged from 2014. The maximum catch-up contribution for those ages 50 or older remains at $1,000. (You can contribute to both a traditional and Roth IRA in 2015, but your total contributions can't exceed these annual limits.)

Traditional IRA deduction limits

The income limits for determining the deductibility of traditional IRA contributions have increased for 2015 (for those covered by employer retirement plans). For example, you can fully deduct your IRA contribution if your filing status is single/head of household and your income ("modified adjusted gross income," or MAGI) is $61,000 or less (up from $60,000 in 2014). If you're married and filing a joint return, you can fully deduct your IRA contribution if your MAGI is $98,000 or less (up from $96,000 in 2014). If you're not covered by an employer plan but your spouse is, and you file a joint return, you can fully deduct your IRA contribution if your MAGI is $183,000 or less (up from $181,000 in 2014).

Roth IRA contribution limits

The income limits for determining how much you can contribute to a Roth IRA have also increased. If your filing status is single/head of household, you can contribute the full $5,500 to a Roth IRA in 2015 if your MAGI is $116,000 or less (up from $114,000 in 2014). However, if you're married and filing a joint return you can make a full contribution if your MAGI is $183,000 or less (up from $181,000 in 2014). (Again, contributions can't exceed 100% of your earned income.)

This is a lot of information to absorb at one time. Talk to your investment professional about how these changes impact your individual financial situations.
