January 2014 - Volume 20 Issue 1

Happy New Year!

2014 Fearless Predictions

Alan S. Chartock
WAMC President and C.E.O.

Here are my fearless predictions for the coming year at WAMC. Let's remember the rules. Some of these predictions are based on things I do NOT want to see happen, so I predict them to put the whammy on them. Others I want to see happen so I predict them to make them happen. Then there are things I actually want to see happen. Any inspection of past events will show just how accurate I have been in that department. So here goes.

Now that Bill Moyers has decided to retire his radio show, Fridays will be used for a food Vox Pop. That way, it will be explained, people can prepare unique dishes for weekend use.

Two WAMC staffers will announce their upcoming marriages.

One staffer with children will announce that another one is on the way.

WAMC's Chief of Staff, Dona Frank, will announce that the Underwriting Department has raised a record

January Programming Notes

Katie Britton
WAMC Programming and Outreach Director

Well, folks, it's a new year with endless possibilities ahead. Some of us watched the ball drop in Times Square, some rang in 2014 with friends and family, while others (like myself) decided it's too hard to stay up that late and greeted the new year sometime after sunrise.

There are so many great things happening at the station, I don't know where to begin. One of the most exciting is that you can now text-to-pledge. That's right, aside from being able to call in your pledge or make it on-line, you now do it from your phone. We also have some special premiums just for the text-to-pledge members. You can find out more on how to do it via our webpage. The times, they are a-changin', and we're keeping up with them. Don't forget, we have our nifty mobile website for your smartphone, whether it's an iPhone or Android. You can stream the station, select specific news stories or interviews, and check out our schedule so you know what specials are coming up.

Speaking of which... I want to remind you of the two new programs that I told you about last month. The first is the amazing music program, American Routes, on Tuesdays at 8 PM. It's a weekly two-hour program presenting a broad range of American music — blues and jazz, gospel and soul, old-time country and rockabilly, Cajun and zydeco, Tejano and Latin, roots rock and pop, avant-garde and classical. The second program is the return of Vox Pop with Food Fridays! We'll have lots of special guests to talk food with you.

January also brings us President Obama's State of amount of money for the station.

The WAMC Locked Box will have more money in it than at any time in history.

Professor Rosemary Armao will have to be defended by Alan Chartock for having the courage to speak her mind. Chartock, emeritus at SUNY will have some harsh criticism for some University at Albany personnel for not understanding why freedom of speech is so important.

Chartock will have a major confrontation with National Public Radio over its underwriting policy. He will do so after hearing from a great many listeners who are astounded that NPR would take both pro-fracking underwriting as well as underwriting supporting genetically modified crops. Chartock will make it clear that he isn't speaking for the station but just for himself.

NPR will come under fire from station managers and from the public over the woman who reads the network underwriting announcements. The NPR brass will counter that they did a two year national search and found the "best announcer in the country."

NPR will announce that it is going to raise money directly from listeners, something that it isn't supposed to do.

WAMC will alter its smoking policy. A blue box right next to the street will be the only place smoking will be allowed.

A wonderful listener will donate an enormous amount of money to the station for its First Amendment Fund. She'll say, "I just can't stand what is happening in this country. What with all the spying and the control of information, WAMC is out there telling the truth and letting all sides have their say. Furthermore, you can't have democracy unless you have information and no one does it better than WAMC."

Her gift will be matched by a man who says, "I've listened to public radio stations all over the country and I have never heard anything like WAMC."

Another public radio station will announce that they have come up with a great idea for a membership gift, a crank radio."

WAMC will receive an award from the New York State Medical Society for its Medical Monday Vox Pop program. The citation will read, "For its efforts to inform the public about medical issues unlike anything else in the country."

NPR will attempt to raise its dues.

Murray the Dog will go on a national tour pushing his book, "Adventures of a Radio Dog."

The Berkshire Ramblers will be discovered and invited by Arlo Guthrie to appear at his annual Carnegie Hall Concert.

A new organization of conservative talk show hosts will try to pressure WAMC to carry Limbaugh, O'Reilly and several more of those types.

You, dear listeners will have a healthy, safe and happy New Year. - Alan

Metropolitan Opera Broadcasts

Saturdays at 1pm

January 4 – Mozart's The Magic Flute

Julie Taymor's fanciful production is sung in English and runs a brisk 100 minutes in this abridged holiday version for families. The cast includes Alek Shrader as Tamino, Eric Owens as Sarastro, and Nathan Gunn as the winsome Papageno.

January 11 – Strauss's Die Fledermaus

Jeremy Sams returns to the Met to direct a new production of Strauss's beloved work, with a revised libretto by acclaimed playwright Douglas Carter Beane. Susanna Phillips and Christopher Maltman lead the sparkling cast, which also features Jane Archibald, Anthony Roth Costanzo, Michael Fabiano, and Paulo Szot. Adam Fischer conducts.

January 18 – Tchaikovsky's Eugene Onegin

Marina Poplavskaya and Peter Mattei take on the roles of the lovestruck Tatiana and the imperious Onegin in Deborah Warner's new production, directed by Fiona Shaw. Rolando Villazón is Lenski, in his first performances on the Met stage since 2009. Russian maestro Alexander Vedernikov makes his company debut on the podium.

January 25 – Donizetti's L'Elisir d'Amore

Anna Netrebko reprises her adorable Adina in Bartlett Sher's charming production of Donizetti's tender comedy. Ramón Vargas is her love-struck Nemorino, and Erwin Schrott sings the likeable quack Dulcamara, whose "magic" potion causes as many problems as it solves.

Becoming Financially Fit in the New Year

Provided by RBC Wealth Management and Thomas E. Brockley

As the calendar flips from 2013 to 2014 many Americans are making New Year's resolutions. If you are like most, your resolutions concern your physical health – eat better, exercise more, stop smoking or drinking, lose weight. But, while improving your physical health don't forget to take a look at your financial health. Just like with physical fitness, small changes can make a big difference.

Review last year's spending and savings to make a realistic budget – In order to change the future you need to know where you've been. Review end-of-year credit card statements and bills. This will give you an accurate snapshot of where your money is going each month. You may even find opportunities to save on things like the cable bill or cell phone service. In addition, don't forget to review end-of-year statements from your investment and benefit accounts to fully understand your income stream. Once you know your true financial picture, make a realistic budget. And stick to it.

Start saving or increase your savings for retirement – If your employer has a 401(k), invest at least enough to get the match, if available. If not, contribute to an IRA. If you already contribute, consider raising your contribution by one percent. You aren't likely to notice the difference now but the compounded interest you gain with this small increased investment will be a big boost to your retirement savings over time. Or, this year, take a look at the advantages of a Roth IRA. This retirement investment vehicle provides tax benefits while allowing you to make contributions up to April 15.

Invest in your children's future – College costs are increasing faster than the cost of living. But there is good news; early investing means compounded interest over time. So, the money you invest when your child is born will be worth much more when they are preparing to go off to college. But, saving for your children's future education doesn't mean skimping on your retirement savings. Remember, you can get loans for college but you can't get a loan for retirement.

Set up an emergency or opportunity account – We've all heard that we should save for a rainy day. But, saving for a rainy day doesn't always mean an emergency. That rainy day may be literal and you've found a great deal to escape for a beach vacation. Rather than letting the opportunity pass or accruing more credit card debt wouldn't it be nice to have a nest egg you can tap? Consider setting up or increasing deductions into an investment or savings account. The money will be there for the unexpected life event or opportunity that comes your way.

Look at insurance coverage, including disability and long-term care – Benjamin Franklin once said, "In this world nothing can be said to be certain, except death and taxes." However, according to the Health Industry Association of America, during the course of your career, you are three and a half times more likely to be injured and need disability coverage than you are to die and need life insurance. With advancements in medicine, diseases that once used to kill people now disable them requiring sustained healthcare needs. These are expensive and can quickly deplete savings. Consider making an investment in your future healthcare needs by purchasing disability and long-term care insurance.

No one has time to become an expert in everything. Just as you might seek a personal trainer to help you lose weight you should consider hiring a financial professional who can help you meet your financial goals. And, taking control of your finances means you just may have enough savings to afford that gym membership to help with your other resolution, to get in shape.
