FROM ALAN

ALAN CHARTOCK

A while back, I told you that the Trump White House was on track to eliminate funding for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (the organization that provides some federal funds for public broadcasters like WAMC) and the National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities. We know that the Breitbart organization, formerly run by senior White House Advisor Steve Bannon, had called for the privatization of the CPB. When I mentioned that on WAMC, the money came rolling in and we made history. I suggested that each time we have a fund drive we tack on an extra $133,000 that would add up to the $400,000 CPB contributes to our $7,000,000 budget. You were smart enough to make sure we got it.

Despite the fact that this defunding really appears to be in the cards, there were a few unkind souls who denied that it would happen. I even heard from some folks in the public radio community who agreed that it couldn't happen. In fact, I was a little disturbed because I felt that NPR itself had its head in the sand. The message they seemed to be sending was, "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Of course, we now know that the CPB is on the White House and Congressional chopping block. There's no doubt that President Trump views the intellectual-arts community in the United States with disdain. During the campaign, he made no secret of his special love for the country's "under-educated." I suspect he knows full well that the folks who listen to public radio, go to museums and study the humanities are not organically his people. It isn't as if we are talking about huge chunks of the federal budget here. We are not; nothing like the price tag for a few nuclear submarines or some advanced aircraft. Nope, this is a "get even" kind of guy and he instinctively knows the kind of people who voted for him and who didn't.

Now we will have to see what the Congress does. This is not the first time that the Congress went after public broadcasting. John McCain was recently quoted on the subject of Trump's war against the press. He suggested, and it made a lot of headlines, that this anti-media stuff was how dictators got started. He is absolutely right. It is doubtful that the members of Congress who we regularly interview on WAMC are going to risk alienating their public radio and TV audiences. They know that they are given an even break by truly balanced news organizations. Former Republican Congressman Chris Gibson voted against the last attempt to defund public broadcasting. I'd like to think that his brand of independence will not be unique when it comes to the 435 members of the House of Representatives or the Senate. I would also like to think that NPR will not start to worry more about their money than about their ability to do their jobs fairly. I've heard from a number of people who think that NPR is tilting right.

It is not surprising that the Trump people are going after public radio. The name of the game is to stand up and look them in the eye. We all remember that when George Pataki was governor, he tried to strip funds just from WAMC. We stood up to him. The key word is "courage." The reason why our Roundtable Panel is so popular is that all kinds of opinions, including those you submit to the show, are welcome. I can tell you, as I have all along, that the move to defund public radio, the arts and the humanities is beyond anything I thought would happen in my lifetime.

We have built a station that never kowtows to power and we'll always be there to look these power mongers in the eye as long, as we have you backing us up.

PROGRAM NOTES

■ KRISTIN GILBERT

Coming up this month on the Saturday Metropolitan Opera Matinee Broadcasts:

March 4th at 1 p.m. — Jules Massenet's Werther
Tenor sensation Vittorio Grigolo is Werther, the young poet who seeks the unattainable love of the beautiful Charlotte, sung by mezzo-soprano Isabel Leonard. Edward Gardner conducts Richard Eyre's visual feast of a production.

March 11th at 1 p.m. — Giuseppe Verdi's La Traviata
Sonya Yoncheva sings one of opera's most beloved heroines, the tragic courtesan Violetta, a role in which she triumphed on the Met stage in 2015, opposite Michael Fabiano as her lover, Alfredo, and Thomas Hampson as his father, Germont. Carmen Giannattasio sings later performances of the title role opposite Atalla Ayan, with the great Plácido Domingo as Germont. Nicola Luisotti conducts.

March 18th at 1 p.m. — Gioachino Rossini's Guillaume Tell
Rossini's epic telling of the William Tell fable returns to the Met stage after an absence of more than 80 years, in a new production by Pierre Audi. Gerald Finley sings one of his signature roles as Tell, the revolutionary on a quest for freedom. Marina Rebeka is Mathilde and Bryan Hymel is her suitor, Arnold. Fabio Luisi conducts Rossini's final, crowning operatic achievement.

March 25th at 1 p.m. — Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's Idomeneo
Mozart's first operatic masterpiece returns to the Met in the classic Jean-Pierre Ponnelle production, conducted by Music Director Emeritus James Levine. The superb ensemble includes Matthew Polenzani as the king torn by a rash vow; mezzo-soprano Alice Coote in the trouser role of his noble son Idamante; soprano Nadine Sierra as Ilia; and soprano Elza van den Heever as the volatile Elettra, who loves Idamante to the bounds of madness.

Solid Ground Center

Solid Ground Center for a Balanced Life opened in 2010. The mission at Solid Ground is to support clients in their search for ways to increase feelings of well-being, to achieve more balance in their lives and to respond to life's stressors. At Solid Ground, they offer both counseling and complementary therapies to support clients in regaining and maintaining balance in their lives.
