Jazz Profile

Damien Escobar, once a self-proclaimed retired artist is now back to being one of the world's top violinist. The people have taken note, but so have the media - the gatekeepers of information, with major features in People Magazine, Huffington post, CNN, The NY Daily News and Chicago Tribune to name a select few. The star even found his way back on national television, performing on WETV's "David Tuttera's: Unveiled."

Since then invitations to appear on television haven't ceased; landing Escobar in the interviewee chair at every major network on both a local and national scale including Fox News, The Hallmark Channel, The Katie Couric Show, Empire Live, NBC, CBS and ABC. A constant creator Damien has had his hand in a plethora of entrepreneurial endeavors including penning his first children's book entitled "The Sound of Strings."
