Loving Our Listeners
Recently 90.5 Classical host Mark Schwitzgoebel received a letter from a woman in New York City who listens to the WKAR Classical stream…

Dear Mark,
I just had the urge to write somebody and thank them for streaming WKAR. I listen to it here in New York City. I do that because my mom’s radio in her nursing home in Okemos is tuned in every day to WKAR. She is 96 and it is a deep form of comfort to me to know we are listening to the same music all day together. It makes me feel close to her, even when I am miles away. This may be a bit of a unique use of streaming, but I bet you collect lots of stories like mine. Your efforts really matter to me.

My best to you,
Gina Bria

Thanks, Gina. Your words are touching and we are glad to be there for you both, and all those around the world who listen to WKAR.

A Warm WKAR Welcome to Peter Whorf
Late this month, WKAR will welcome Peter Whorf as the new WKAR Radio station manager.

Peter has a Bachelor of Arts degree from the Eastman School of Music, and has been the program director for WNYC and KBIA, the managing producer for news and talk programming at Chicago’s WBEZ and most recently at WFMT/Chicago as program director and vice president for content.

Gary Reid, WKAR’s general manager, said, “His references from around the country were generous in their praise.” “Peter is astonishingly creative and leads by example,” said one. “He is thoughtful and forward thinking…,” added another.

Peter and his family are moving to mid-Michigan this month and he will join us on August 27. We’ll offer you a more in-depth profile of Peter after he’s had a chance to settle for a bit!

WKAR’s Summer Spectacular!
August 16-26
Tune in August 16-26 and give us a call! Our September campaign moves ahead to August this year. If you generally renew your membership in September, now is the time to call or visit us online at WKAR.org.

This is the first drive of our fiscal year. Our plan is to significantly eliminate pledge days. So, while our on-air campaigns will continue, they will be only 11 days, if goals are met and we stay on track for our fiscal year.

On the local scene, Elderly Instruments: All Things Strings will visit the Lansing music store that has fans among musicians worldwide. This fascinating documentary about a beloved Lansing landmark was produced by Bob Albers of the MSU College of Communication Arts & Sciences with some of his students.

Music offerings include Celebrating the Music of Johnny Cash, Pegi and Neil Young’s Concert for the Bridge, and a new version of Ed Sullivan favorites. Jackie Evancho returns with music from the movies and viewers will meet Nathan Pacheco, an American singer-songwriter who has been previously seen in Yanni specials.

Self-help programs include Dr. Fuhrman’s Immunity Solution, a new program on how one can boost their immune system.

Check listings for WKAR, Create and World for times.

The Great Lakes Folk Festival is much more than music but with 14 acts performing over three days on three stages – all free – there is plenty of that, too! Listen and dance to music that includes Celtic, bluegrass, gospel, polka, Zydeco, Dominican Merengue, Ethiopian, Armenian, Indian and more! The rich cultural diversity of the festival sets it apart from others, with traditional arts exhibits, a community sing, a musician’s jam and children’s activities. WKAR will be introducing acts at the Dance Tent, located in the Albert Street lot.

Check schedules online at Greatlakesfolkfest.net or follow GLFF on Facebook and Twitter.

…is for Magnets!

And magnets are COOL! You and your kids can make your own refrigerator magnets together (see the craft project on this page) and then have fun learning about magnetism.

Let’s Go On A Magnet Hunt!
Hide magnets on metal surfaces around the house, such as the refrigerator, a file cabinet, and the washing machine. Help your child think of things that are metal where a magnet might "stick." Then go on a hunt to find the magnets!

Magnetic? Or Not?
Collect items that can be picked up with a magnet (metal screw, paper clip, can lid) and items that cannot (cotton ball, toy, paper.) Let your child use a magnet to sort the items into two piles—picked up by a magnet and not picked up by a magnet.

Q: What did the items the magnet picked up have in common?
A: They were all metal.

Make Your Own!
Make your own 'fridge magnets and give them real personality!

SUPPLIES:
• Empty match boxes (try a dollar store for an inexpensive package)
• Copies of photographs or pictures from magazines (If you’re looking for photos, consider using some of your favorite friends from PBS KIDS!)
• White glue or a glue stick
• Magnets or magnetic tape
• Scissors

INSTRUCTIONS:
• Cut out a picture to fit the top of the match box.
• Glue your picture to the top.
• If you like, decorate the sides with paint or colored paper.
• Let the box dry.
• Glue a magnet on the back or use a piece of magnetic tape.
• It’s done! Make more magnets to share with family or friends.

Share pictures of the magnets you create by posting them on our WKAR Education Services Facebook Page. We’d love to see what you come up with!

Dick Estell is reading The Great Northern Express by Howard Frank Mosher, which he began on July 31. Shortly before novelist Howard Frank Mosher turned 65, he learned that he had cancer. After 46 radiation treatments, he set out alone in his old car on a monumental road trip and book tour across America. The Great Northern Express chronicles the writer’s 20,000-mile journey as he discovers what he loved enough to live for.

On August 17, Anatomy of Injustice by Raymond Bonner begins. It is a page-turning account of the trials and death row appeals of Edward Lee Elmore, a quiet and mentally challenged African-American man accused of the murder of an elderly white woman in South Carolina in 1982. It tells of the remarkably dedicated legal team that fought for him to have fair representation in court after three separate and grossly mismanaged jury trials. Kirkus Reviews said the book is a “powerfully intimate look at how the justice system works – or doesn’t work – in capital cases.”
