Hampton has no industry. People choose to live here because of the quiet and isolation. Your gun range will cause many to consider living else where. This town does not need the impact of increased traffic and noise.

The state of CT should really consider a location that will not effect home values, the creation of noise pollution and have negative impact on the environment and its natural surroundings. It should rethink this extravagant expenditure at a time of fiscal instability. Why, when there is already an existing facility that is centrally located, must the state try to force this type of a facility on towns that clearly don't want it on numerous levels. Just update the existing facility and be done with it!

What is proposed is a very extensive facility and it does not belong in a residentially zoned area. Hampton is not the place for a paramilitary facility. It would make Hampton a potential target for violence. It is also troubling to wonder how the state this proposal when there is such a budget deficit and on-going layoffs. I strongly oppose Hampton as a site for the State Police Training Facility.

I am against the installation of a State Police Firearms Training Facility in the town of Hampton because it is not a fair deal for us. The revenue to the town, in the form of taxes (or the equivalent), is small relative to the value of the facility and the town will not receive any revenue from the other law enforcement “partners” who will be sharing the facility. Furthermore, because the State is exempt from the zoning regulations in this town, I believe that they will not be compelled to be a good member of this community. The scope of the facility is also much larger than I had originally anticipated, and it now seems too large to comfortably fit in here. As the State’s goal is to find a site “in relatively remote areas, far away from critical infrastructure”, it is apparent that they would rather just ignore us. I suggest that they look farther down the road.

We are called "The Quiet Corner" exactly for the peace and quiet of this area. I'm not against gun ranges or dislike the State Police, I just don't think Hampton would be the appropriate area. Its too quiet and rural. Bozrah or somewhere conveniently closer to their station would be nice. I just feel that a gun range in Hampton would effect the wildlife so drastically that residents would begin to have animal issues in their own back yards

I believe that any gun range, especially out of doors, will undoubtedly effect everyone, perhaps even a few miles away from said shooting range. It's a bad idea to even think of putting such a facility in our small town of Hampton. We need our peace of mind and quiet place of residence.

It makes no sense to locate one of the noisiest activities in Connecticut in one of the quietest places. Which would bother you more? Sitting quietly in your backyard when suddenly your neighbor sings "Sweet Caroline" at the top of their lungs or hearing them do the same at a Red Sox game with thousands of other fans? The greater the background noise, the less intrusive any particular noise becomes.

Not in Hampton By Jamie Boss If there was ever a reason to object to the State of Connecticut building a police shooting range in Hampton, the response of “Not in Hampton” seems most appropriate. Why? It seems, as small towns in the quiet corner go, we are unique. Had Norman Rockwell lived in Hampton, it would have been a gold mine of Americana for him to draw upon for artistic inspiration. There are farms, barns, horses, cows, tractors, hills, rock walls, churches with white steeples, Fourth of July parades with tractors taking the place of floats, kids holding American flags and maple syrup. We even have the tree that was used on the design of the Connecticut Quarter. It is this mix of everything agrarian that separates us from practically all other Connecticut towns. It makes us irreplaceable on a statewide level. It is the things “NOT” found in Hampton that sets us apart from our neighbors. Unlike most of our surrounding communities, our small town of some 2000 residents has a few things missing. By choice, over the years, our community forefathers kept this town as close to its rural beginnings as possible. There are no stores, gas stations, strip malls, shopping centers, parking lot lights conflicting with our darkness, traffic lights or other amenities that practically all of our surrounding communities have. This is a town that hackled when the design of the new school looked too “modern”. When you combine the two state parks with all other forms of open space, we have just about 3,000 acres of open space in Hampton. In sharp contrast, our two business zones along route 6 are but a mere sliver on the town map. Should the State build a 55,000 square foot facility with accommodations for pistol, rifle, shotguns and automatic weapons, our town would begin a very long road of change. Soon, someone would open a coffee shop or snack shop to take advantage of the influx of troopers during the week. Having parking lot that holds 125 cars is a very good indication of the States’ plans regardless of their claims of limited use. First the coffee, then the gas station and then the tide of change slowly encroaches upon our town. All of the efforts of our previous elders and residents would begin to slowly erode until we become a Brooklyn or Chaplin or Pomfret or Ashford. By design, we are inherently different than these communities save, perhaps, Scotland. There are other reasons to object to the range. Personal ones like the houses that border the proposed property. The noise and disruption is a major concern for them. Then one thinks about the horse riding school nearby and whether or not moms will want their kids to be so close to firearms and loud noises. Loud noises make for jittery horses. The nearby cemeteries will also hear the sound of chattering gun fire during weekday burials. Initially, for the first five years or so, our property values could be affected. Taking in consideration the anti-shooting range hubbub from neighboring towns, should the facility land here, it would take quite awhile for the stigma to wear off. While the State promises “money for taxes”, I tend not to believe what Hartford politicians promise. How they can justify spending $7,000,000 in one shot to support a mere 1,200 troopers. This amounts to $6,000 per trooper. Meanwhile, everything from hospitals to state employees are being affected with our present failing economy. (I fully understand they claimed a 6 million dollar budget at the town meeting but the shooting range’s online website states a maximum of 7 million. The troopers also said there would be no automatic weapon training but when pushed they admitted there would be. This usage of automatic weapons is also indicated on the website for the facility. The most remarkable statement to come out of the meeting is when the troopers claimed that most of their automatic weapon training would occur with the weapons set on a semi-automatic. This begs the question “why automatic training” when the automatic function of the weapon is not in use. I get the sense that many of State Police statements during the town meeting were down-playing the actual stated plans found online.) More to the point, our community is set apart from the world almost as if we were an Amish community. While we might wear buttons, have zippers on our pants and have few women wearing hats to hide their hair, there is no denying we intentionally set ourselves apart by our very conservative approach to business development within this town. Like it or not, Hampton is uniquely rural, even to the point of the residents paying higher property taxes as a result of the lack of commercial development with our boundaries. The signs along Route 97 say it best....”Welcome to the Historic Village of Hampton”. Our state should see the unique value of our community and seek building a shooting range elsewhere.

My family lives in this wonderful area and it would just ruin the atmosphere that we think of historic CT areas. Once the state takes this land for a gun range they can do anything that they want with it over time, and the local residents will be ignored. It is contrary to the lifestyles in CT and especially this area. I know that the property values will decline, and I'm sure that it will make it much more difficult to attract new businesses and residents into the area. I know that I would never even consider living in an area with a gun range, so imagine the people who have already made this area their home. They've invested a lot in their homes, their communities and neighbors- only to have the state decide to ruin it . I personally know the effects of having a town drastically changed forever because on July 6,2013 our town had a train carrying fuel explode , killing 47 people. Yes, it was lac- Megantic, Quebec. A town doesn't recover from huge changes like you are proposing, it will kill the kind of town that exists there now. I'm sure there can be another solution, and , honestly, why do you need a gun range at all? If it is for training police , why not , first, only an indoor range, and on an already existing building that the police own. Just imagine this gun range on the street across from where YOU live- imagine how it would affect your lives. So why force such a terrible situation in others? It is just not needed in today's society where gun control is being more and more popular. It just doesn't fit with CT.

The presentation given by state at town mting. was not all truthful. Willington found out much more was to be done at this facility. They also found that there would be little if any extra $ for the town, (Simsbury got all of approx. $6,000),that the lead level at the site would be damaging to the surrounding area.I hope our BOS considers recanting publicly the "information" that was in the Chronicle before the meeting was held and waiting for the town's people to express any opinions of their own.

Hampton residents understand, and are respectful of, the need for a training facility for our state troopers but purchasing over 400 acres of pristine woodlands, ponds, streams and open space in a neighborhood in one of the quietest parts of the "Quiet Corner" for a 55,000 sq. ft., state-of-the-art firing range facility? It makes NO sense! There are logical options (i.e.) the National Guard facility in East Haven, CT -- far less costly monetarily and far less costly than ruining lives , ecosystems and the character of one of the few towns remaining in Connecticut with no commercial businesses or traffic lights.

Gun ranges, in residential locations, are absolutely, irresponsible, and uncalled for. Quiet is essential to the health of everyone. I totally disagree, that this is being proposed. No matter where you place this range, the sound from 4000+ rounds a day from that of a standard issue 9mm (not even including the tactical weapons the troopers were oh-so vague about) would be audible from the likes of Hampton Elementary and Parish Hill, but it would lower property values and drive out wildlife. Although the argument could be made that animals adjust, why create a problem where there is none? There are multiple commercial ranges in CT gone unused and could be retrofitted. The current CSP firing range lies on a 12.5 acre plot, why do they suddenly need 400 acres in the middle of a residential area?

This is a small town, but there are literally thousands of species that live in this forest. Although I live in a nearby town, I am a student at a professional music studio directly across the road from the proposed shooting range. The studio would be forced to close if this site were chosen. The site is surrounded by a beautiful rural neighborhood, with a horse farm, organic farms, artists' studios, retirees' homes, and young families' homes. Lives and livelihoods and property values would be forever damaged if this cite were chosen.

This training compound does not belong in a rural, farming town located in a valley where sounds will resonate throughout our small town. At my residence stated in the sign in sheet is at the altitude of 570.208 feet above sea level for the proposed STATE POLICE FIRING RANGE location, the altitude is at 393.031 feet above sea level. (Google Maps Find Altitude) There is on way any structural engineer can stop the sounds of a riles firing 3,750 rounds a day by 30 State Troopers that can be not heard with me on my back porch...five days a week. Hampton is a bed room community, not a military base..WE in HAMPTON needs every one of you, that this e-mail is address to PLEASE listen to all of the people of HAMPTON CONN. affected by this massive disruption of our peace in our area in which we live in...THANK YOU <<<JAMES K>>>

Hampton is no place for this gun range. It will destroy our peaceful beautiful town. It will cause emotional harm to those exposed to this terrifying noise. The state should not be spending money on this at all given our fiscal situation. Thousands are being layed off causing vital services to be cut and eliminated. The state police have a gun range!
