A dog named Brutus walked through his yard. He looked down and saw a white egg. He barked but no one was around. He decided to go find the nest.
He set off with the egg in his mouth. He walked through the desert.
He swam across a river. He climbed many mountains.
He was tired but knew he needed to find the egg’s home. Just then a mother bird appeared. Her name was Lucille and the egg was her egg.
All of a sudden the egg started to hatch and the baby bird was born. Lucille named him Richard. She told Brutus thank you for saving my baby.
Brutus decided it was time to go. When he got home his own, he asked where he had been. Brutus thought to himself, "everywhere!"
